Communicating with Clarity and Precision

People who think and communicate clearly:

- strive to be accurate in their written and verbal communication
- support their statements with evidence
- use precise descriptions and vocabulary
- avoid overgeneralizing
- are aware when they are not clear to their audience

Gathering Data Through all Senses

People who do so:

- pay attention to the world around them
- keep their senses open and alert
- absorb information from the environment
- form mental images
- pay attention to textures, rhythms, patterns, sounds and colors
- touch things and get their hands “dirty”
- experience the world and participate
